

Prognosis of medallists Olympics 2024

This prognosis predicts the medallists for every of the 329 disciplines on the Olympic program at the forthcoming Olympics in Paris. Another document adds up all the predicted medals per nation in a Medal Table Prognosis Olympics 2024.

The method

The prognosis is constructed by means of sports specific aspects alone. In most disciplines, the prognosis follows objective criteria without any subjective estimates. For instance, in some sports the last World Championships in 2023 or 2024 was the last event similar in terms of participants and competitiveness to the Olympic Games. In these cases the predicted medallists are the same as at the last World Championships unless these medallists are injured or for other reasons do not participate in Paris. For other sports, it is assumed that the most recent official World rankings provide the best basis for the prognosis.

However, in some cases such objective measures have been modified as basis for the predictions by more subjective estimates. It is for instance the case in decathlon in athletics, where Kevin Mayer is predicted to regain his Olympic title even if he has not recent results to back up this prediction. Only athletes who are actually taking part in the Olympics in Paris are included in the predictions. This has caused modifications of the objective criteria for the predictions. For instance, Russian wrestlers qualified for the Olympics as medallists in the 2023 World Championships but have chosen to stay away from Paris.

In some sports, any objective measures for the prognosis is missing, and consequently there is a stronger element of subjectivity in the estimate. This is for instance the case in boxing and tennis (see below).

In all Olympics, the host nation improves its medal standings as a result of home advantage and additional investments. A prognosis based on only objective criteria will not be able to take this into account. Consequently, a subjective element is included in the predictions below. In sports where objective criteria are applied, a marginal upgrading of some of the predicted French medallists are made. Further, in sports with an element of subjectivity in the estimates, the predictions are slightly skewed in favour of the potential French medallists. In total, this method of including the host advantage in the prognosis adds 10-15 medals to the predicted French medal tally which is assumed to be probable.

For each sport, and in some cases separately for each discipline, it is specified below on what basis the predictions are made.

BOXING

In boxing it is not relevant to use the results from the 2023 World Championships as predictor of the results in the Olympic Games in Paris because of the ongoing organizational conflicts in international amateur boxing. The International Boxing Association (IBA) are seen by IOC as deeply corrupt and characterized by an unhealthy dependency of the Russian government and Gazprom. IOC has taken away the right of the IBA to organize the boxing tournament in the last two Olympics, and a new competing world organization, World Boxing, has been set up by the USA, England and other countries whose boxers do not participate in the IBAs world championships. On the other, Russia takes part in the world championships but not in the Olympics. Instead, the prognosis is an estimate based on the results from the big championship tournaments *(Olympics 2020, World Championships 2011 and 2023, European championships, the European Games, the Asian championships, Asian Games, Panamerican Games plus the results from the tournament Strandj Memorial.

CANOEING

The prognosis is based on the results from the last Olympic Games, the most recent World and European Championships as this seasons World Cup events. More recent results are attached a higher weight than results in the past. This means, for instance, that the results from the 2024 European Championship are given higher weight than the 2023 World Championships (in a sport where European athletes are almost totally dominant).

3. Peter Kretschmer/Tim Hecker-Germany

K-1 500 m, women

1. Lisa Carrington-New Zealand
2. Tamara Csipes-Hungary
3. Emma Jørgensen-Denmark

Lisa Carrington is reigning Olympic champion and won the world championships in both 2022 and 2023. Her results in World Cups 2024 indicate that she will maintain her dominance in Paris. Tamara Csipes and Emma Jørgensen have been closest to challenge the New Zealander in the Olympics 2020 (Csipes no.2, Jørgensen no.3) and the 2023 world championships (Jørgensen no.2, Csipes no.3). In their most recent meeting at the 2024 European championships, Csipes vandt med klar marginal med Jørgensen som no.2.

K2 500 m, women

1. Lisa Carrington/Alicia Hoskin-New Zealand
2. Emma Jørgensen/Frederikke Matthiesen-Denmark
3. Martyna Klatt/Helena Wisniewska-Poland

Emma Jørgensen/Frederikke Matthiesen are world champions 2023 and seem to maintain the same standard in 2024 with good results in European championships (no.1) and in the World Cup (no.2 after New Zealand). However, Lisa Carrington/Alicia Hoskin have even better results.

ROAD

For banecykling, MTB og BMX baseres størstedelen af prognosen på resultater fra seneste VM. For landevejscykling foretages i stedet en skønsmæssig vurdering, der inddrager forhold såsom rutens beskaffenhed, og hvilke ryttere der er med til at støtte den rytter, de enkelte lande formentlig satser på.

The prognosis is a subjective estimate based on the results from the 2023 World Championships, this season's UCI World Tour plus knowledge about the race profile that seems to give the advantage to sprinters with some endurance. In addition, the prognosis for the individual road races is also based on the quality of the supporting 'lead out' riders for each team.

FOOTBALL

Men

1. France
2. Spain
3. Argentina

Men's teams are restricted to under-23 players (born on or after 1 January 2001) with a maximum of three overage players allowed. Spain and France are expected to have strong squads. Spain is the most successful team in U21 World and European championship. However, France is also very strong at youth level and is expected to win at home. Argentina qualified as one of two South American teams (together with Paraguay). They have an abundance of talent and will come close to the two European teams

Women

1. Spain
2. USA
3. France

Spain won the World Cup in 2023 and the Nations League finals in 2024. USA is historically the most successful team in women's football. France was no. 2 in the Nations League finals in 2024 and is likely to do well at home.

3. Raz Hershko-Israel
3. Kayra Ozdemir-Turkey

Romane Dicko is world no.1 after winning the European championship and three Grand Slam golds in 2024 (after a bronze medal in the Tokyo Olympics). Akira Sone (Olympic champion 2020 and world champion 2023) is preferred as the Japanese representative in the category instead of Wakabe Tomito won the world championship 2024. Raz Hershko won the European championships 2024. Kayra Ozdemir was runner up to Tomito at the world championship 2024. Beatriz Souza-Brazil is close but is expected to miss out on a medal

MODERN PENTATHLON

Prognosis is based on a combination of results in the 2023 and 2024 World Championships, IUMP world ranking and the World Cup 2023.

Men

1. Joseph Choong-Great Britain
2. Csaba Bohm-Hungary
3. Jun Woong-tae-South Korea

Joseph Choong is reigning Olympic champion and won back to back world championships in 2022 and 2023. He did not perform well in the 2024 world championships but is expected to win in Paris. Csaba Bohm is 2024 world champion and ranked world no.1.

Women

1. Elena Micheli-Italy
2. Seong Seung-min-South Korea
3. Blanka Guzi-Hungary

Elena Micheli won back to back world championships in 2022 and 2023 and the World Cup in 2023. She has no results in 2024 but is expected to be the best in Paris. Seong Seung-min is 2024 world champion and ranked world no.1

ROWING

Prognosis is primarily based on results from the 2023 World Championships taking into account results in European Championships and World Cup I, II and III in 2024.

Men's single sculls

1. Germany (Oliver Zeidler)
2. Netherlands (Simon van Dorp)
3. New Zealand (Thomas Mackintosh)

Medallists from the 2023 World Championships

Men's pair

1. Great Britain (Oliver Wynne-Griffith/Tom George)
2. Switzerland (Roman Röösli/Andrin Gulich)
3. Spain (Jaime Canalejo/Javier Garcia)

Switzerland are 2023 world champions but has been defeated by Great Britain in all competitions in 2024. Spain was only no. 7 in the 2023 World Championships but was no. 2 - only narrowly beaten by Great Britain - in World Cup II (the most competitive of the world cups).

Men's double sculls

1. Netherlands (Melvin Twellaar/Stef Broenink)
2. Croatia (Martin Sinkovic/Valent Sinkovic)
3. Ireland (Daire Lynch/Philip Doyle)

The Dutch world champions have won both the 2024 European championships and the two World Cups they have taken part in this year. The Croatian Sinkovic brothers have not competed in the big competitions in 2024 but will be expected to be runners up to Netherlands as in the 2023 World Championships.

Lightweight men's double sculls

1. Ireland (Fintan McCarthy/Paul O'Donovan)
2. Italy (Stefano Oppo/Gabriel Soares)
3. Switzerland (Jan Schäuble/Raphaël Ahumada)

Ireland are 2023 World champions and reigning Olympic champions. They are expected to defend their Olympic title. Switzerland and Italy were no. 2 and no. 3, respectively, in the 2023 World Championships, but results in 2024 indicate that they are likely to swap places in Paris.

Men's four

1. USA
2. Great Britain
3. New Zealand

Great Britain are Olympic champions and also won the 2023 World Championships but were defeated with a large margin by USA (runner up at the 2023 World Championships) at World Cup II 2024).

Men's quadruple sculls

1. Netherlands
2. Poland
3. Italy

Reigning Olympic champions and world champions Netherlands are clear favourites after victories in the two World Cup competitions they took part in this year. Italy and Poland (world champions 2022) were no.2 and no.3, respectively, in the 2023 World Championships. The results in this year's competitions indicate that they will swap places in Paris.

Men's eight

1. Great Britain
2. Netherlands
3. USA

Great Britain are world champions 2022 and 2023 and has won the European championship and two World Cup's in 2024. Netherlands were defeated by USA in World Cup II 2024 but were no.2 in the last two world championships and are expected to be no.2 in Paris. USA were only no.6 in last years World Championships but are expected to be better in Paris than Australia (no.3 in the last two world championships).

Women's single sculls

1. Netherlands (Karolien Florijn)
2. New Zealand (Emma Twigg)
3. Australia (Tara Rigney)

Karolien Florijn is undefeated since 2022 and is clear favourite. Emma Twigg is reigning Olympic champion. She was defeated by Tara Rigney in World Cup II in 2024, and the competition for second place will be strong.

Women's pair

1. Netherlands (Ymkje Clevering/Veronique Meester)
2. Australia (Jessica Morrison/ Annabelle McIntyre)

3. Romania (Ioana Vrinceanu/Roxana Anghel)

Medallists from the 2023 World Championships

Women's double sculls

1. Romania (Nicoleta-Ancuța Bodnar/Simona Radis)
2. USA (Kristina Wagner/Sophia Vitas)
3. Australia (Amanda Bateman/Harriet Hudson)

Romania is reigning Olympic champions and World champions 2022 and 2023. They are expected to defend their Olympic title, even if they were beaten by Norway and Lithuania in this year's European championships and have not taken part in any World Cup's in 2024. USA (no.3 in last year's World championships) and Australia were no.1 and no.2 in World Cup II 2024. Lithuania (Donata Karaliene/Dovile Rimkute) were no.2 in last year's World championships and may be better than USA and Australia.

Lightweight women's double sculls

1. Great Britain (Emily Craig/Imogen Grant)
2. New Zealand (Shannon Cox/Jackie Kiddle)
3. USA (Mary Reckford/Michelle Sechser)

Great Britain was disappointedly only no.4 in the 2020 Olympics but have won everything since then. USA were runners up at last year's World championships but have been defeated this year in World Cup II by New Zealand (no.5 in last year's World championships). Romania was no.3 last year and may compete for the medals

Women's four

1. Great Britain
2. Netherlands
3. Romania

Great Britain were World champions 2022 and won the European championships and two World Cup's in 2024. They defeated Netherlands (the 2023 world champions) three times in big competition since 2024. Romania was no.3 in last year's World Championships.

Women's quadruple sculls

1. Great Britain
2. Netherlands
3. China

Medallists from the 2023 World Championships. Great Britain won the 2023 World championship and two of three World Cup competitions this year. China is defending Olympic champions and also won the 2022 World Championships. Ukraine will compete for medals. They were European champions 2023 and won World Cup II this year defeating the Olympic crews from Netherlands and Great Britain.

Women's eight

1. Romania
2. Canada
3. USA

Romania are 2022 and 2023 world champions and won this year's European championship. Canada (reigning Olympic champions) were only no.5 in last year's World Championships but won this year World Cup II defeating Great Britain and USA (runners up in last year's World Championships).

TENNIS

In the the singles tournaments, the prognosis is mainly based on the current ATP and WTA rankings. However, it is also considered how different players feel more or less comfortable playing on clay. Clay court specialists are seen as having higher chances for a good result than other players.

Men's single

1. Carlos Alcaraz-Spain
2. Jannik Sinner-Italy
3. Casper Ruud-Norway

Women's single

1. Iga Swiatek-Poland
2. Cori Gauff-USA
3. Jasmine Paolini-Italy

In the doubles tournaments, the prognosis can only to a limited degree be based on official rankings and results as almost all double teams playing at the ATP and WTA tours are composed of players from different countries, whereas only double teams with players from the same nation can participate in the Olympics. So, most double teams playing in the Olympic tournament do not play together regularly. The prognosis is a subjective estimation and is more uncertain than in most other disciplines.

Men's double

1. Mate Pavic/Nikola Pietrangeli-Croatia
2. Matthew Ebden/John Peers-Australia
3. Neal Skupski/Joe Salisbury-Great Britain

Women's double

1. Barbora Krejčíková/Katerina Siniaková-Czech Republic
2. Coco Gauff/Jessica Pegula-USA
3. Sara Errani/Jasmine Paolini-Italy

In women's doubles all three predicted medallists are plying together on the tour or have recently done so.

Mixed double

1. Wesley Koolhof/Demi Schuurs-Netherlands
2. Andrea Vavassori/Sara Errani-Italy
3. Alexander Zverev/Laura Siegemund-Germany

This is probably the most difficult discipline to predict. Firstly, because there is only one tournament on the tour where mixed double is played. Secondly, because at the time of writing the list of participants was still not published. The prediction is an estimate based on an assumption that the best men's and women's double players participate in the mixed double as well.
